

Philadelphia Requests Delay For Shortway Project

Civic Leaders To Receive Statement

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Greater Philadelphia Movement has called for a halt in the building and planning of the proposed Keystone Shortway until a survey can determine its full economic impact on southeastern Pennsylvania.

A policy statement issued Saturday by GPM's executive committee said "construction of the shortway prior to the removal of all tolls on the Pennsylvania Turnpike and its extension will do irreparable damage to the economy of southeastern Pennsylvania and its surrounding area."

The statement issued by the executive committee, of which Mayor Richardson Dilworth is a member, will be presented tomorrow to a meeting of Southeastern Pennsylvania civic leaders. It says:

"We believe all planning, engineering and construction work on the shortway should cease until the state government has made a survey answering the following questions:

- "A. For how many years will the construction of the shortway, under the existing top priority, delay the removal of tolls from the Pennsylvania Turnpike and its extensions by diverting traffic from the turnpike to the shortway?
- "B. How much trucking, otherwise destined for southeastern Pennsylvania and its ports, will instead use the toll free route to New York when the shortway is built?
- "C. What will be the general economic impact of the completion of the shortway on the southeastern Pennsylvania ports?
- "D. What would be the relative merits of an Erie-Philadelphia highway via Williamsport instead of the Sharon-Stroudsburg route now being started?
- "E. What method and what new taxes would be required for the state to assume outstanding turnpike bonds to permit the early removal of all tolls on the turnpike and extensions?
- "F. What portion of available Pennsylvania highway funds would be expended on the proposed shortway?"

County To Take Part In Air Alert Drill

BILLOWING CLOUDS of black smoke rise from 30-foot wide pit of flaming oil used in week-end Monroe County Firemen's Assn. school. Unidentified fire fighters aim fog stream at the fiery mass in practical session of combating this type blaze. Other fire battling methods against oil fed flames used in the school included foam and dry chemicals. Another picture on page three.

86 Drill At Annual County Fire School

EIGHTY-SIX volunteer fire fighters spent a rainy weekend going to classes and combating blazes of various origins in a Monroe County Firemen's Assn. fire school later described as "exceptionally successful."

The men were broken down into elementary and advanced groups for participating in both classes and practical application techniques of fire fighting.

The practice drills included battling a 30-foot wide oil flame and concealed flames within a building.

The latter drill was conducted on the Burgoon property on Stroudsburg's N. Fifth St. with a three-room structure especially constructed for the school.

Each room of the petitioned building posed some type of fire problem to the participants. The first room held a flaming container of gasoline. The second room held a burning drum of oil with an old rubber tire.

In the third room, firemen were required to combat burning tires and debris. Each of the fire problems had to be fought under smoke as well as fire conditions.

The 18 instructors and officiating personnel used some 2,700 gallons of oil in the drill. The actual fire was ignited with the aid of gasoline.

Tornadoes Hit Two States

By The Associated Press

SEVERAL tornadoes skipped around the tornado alley of southern Illinois Saturday and others touched down across the Mississippi River in Missouri but there was little reported damage and only one injury.

Most of the damage was confined to barns and outbuildings on farms.

Classes on fire fighting theory were conducted in the Clearview School. Both these classes and practice sessions were made on a rotation basis so that each was repeated at least twice.

Other sessions included ladder and rescue work at the 45-foot high tower on East Stroudsburg's borough playground; rescue work with ladders, ropes and stretchers; and ladder drills on setting the pieces of equipment up fast and properly.

Following the classes and sessions were demonstrations by fire fighting equipment manufacturers. The school was held between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Kennedy, speaking in a transcribed radio interview declined to predict what the House will do but said he is confident the Senate will pass some over-all labor bill.

Interviewed by Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) in a program recorded for broadcast in New York, Kennedy said he has a full-time job being a senator "without saying what the House ought to do."

Kennedy said the Senate committee would consider proposals for punishment of crooked middle men in labor relations; closing of a gap in labor disputes immune from policing by either state or federal agencies; reporting of the handling of union funds; guaranteeing democracy in union affairs; tightening of laws dealing with boycotts in labor disputes, giving economic strikers a vote in plant elections; elimination of the non-Communist affidavit requirement.

Education Ruling Wins State Praise

HARRISBURG (AP) — A new action requiring school superintendents to hold a doctor's degree or equivalent was praised yesterday as placing Pennsylvania ahead of rest of the nation in this field.

Dr. Charles H. Boehm, superintendent of public instruction, made the statement in a report to Gov. Leader after noting the recent ruling by the State Council of Education.

"We have taken a long forward step toward raising educational standards," said the superintendent. "It is one of the finest examples of Pennsylvania's rapid progress in long-range improvement of its education system."

Effective Date

The new ruling takes effect in 1962 and doesn't affect county or district superintendents who now hold jobs.

The council's regulation is actually a definition of the school code which states that the superintendent must complete "in a college or university a graduate course in education."

Senators Urge Action On Labor Laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor Mitchell and Sen. Karl Mundt (R-SD) urged yesterday that the House get busy on labor union cleanup legislation at the same time the Senate is studying it.

Mundt said the House won't have time to act before adjournment if it waits until the Senate finishes with the legislation. Senate leaders have pledged the Senate will pass a significant bill before Congress adjourns but Mundt said that would be a gesture of futility without House action too.

Mitchell said he was pleased that a Senate Labor subcommittee headed by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D - Mass) will resume hearings today on rival bills designed to help or compel unions to stamp out any corruption that may be in their ranks.

The committee is pledged to report out a bill not later than June 10 for Senate consideration.

Mitchell, putting in a strong plug for President Eisenhower's proposals in the labor-management field, said the House has taken no action whatsoever and had not even scheduled hearings on a pension-welfare reporting bill passed by the Senate.

"I earnestly hope that House leaders will reconsider their position on this matter," Mitchell said in a statement.

Mundt said in an interview he has accepted the Senate subcommittee's invitation to testify in the hearings.

Realistic Chance

"The only realistic chance we have of getting any over-all constructive labor legislation enacted this year rests entirely on whether the House will hold simultaneous hearings in the same general area. If they don't, this is going to be just a gesture of futility," he added.

"This is a chance for the Democratic party to demonstrate its sincerity of purpose by using its influence for simultaneous or nearly simultaneous House hearings in this field," Mundt said.

He said he sees little prospect that the Senate could pass a controversial labor bill much before July 1. This Mundt said, would not leave enough time for the House to start from scratch and bring the issue to a vote before Congress quits for the year. Final adjournment is expected to come sometime between late July and mid-August.

Kennedy, speaking in a transcribed radio interview declined to predict what the House will do but said he is confident the Senate will pass some over-all labor bill.

Interviewed by Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) in a program recorded for broadcast in New York, Kennedy said he has a full-time job being a senator "without saying what the House ought to do."

Eisenhower Warns Of World Responsibilities

STRATFORD, Va. (AP) — President Eisenhower said yesterday the United States must live up to its responsibilities in a world growing smaller. He said in particular the nation must remember 4 1/2 million of its citizens are engaged in making the goods this country sends abroad.

In bright overcast weather, to a crowd of more than 500 on a warm day, Eisenhower delivered a backyard talk at the ancestral home of a general he admires greatly for all that he once second-guessed him.

The President shared the speaking program at a ceremony honoring Robert E. Lee, the Confederate commander, with Secretary of Commerce Weeks.

Economic Unit

Eisenhower recalled that the sprawling Lee estate was an almost entirely self-contained economic unit when Thomas Lee, the Civil War general's grandfather, established it on the cliffs of the Potomac in 1725.

But the difference between the country then and the nation now, he added, "is the difference between ox carts and jet airplanes."

He said it was the duty of each American to think for himself in his relation to the others in the world and make of the nation the place that the Lees and other men of vision foresaw for the future.

"There is not a person in the United States," he said, "that is not affected every single day by what happens in Africa, in far Asia, in Europe and all of South America. We are no longer independent economic units."

"Our total commerce is 20 billion dollars, and 4 1/2 million workers in our country are engaged in building the things that we sell abroad."

Hoover Aims Fall Of Daily Worker

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover says the scuttling of the Daily Worker, far from being a sign that the Communist party in America is collapsing, indicates that it is firmly under control of the Soviet Union.

The FBI director testified Jan. 16 before a House Appropriations subcommittee, which made the testimony public yesterday.

Hoover said the Communist party tried hard to give the impression the Daily Worker was suspended for lack of money. But actually, he said, the dissolution was due to an intense factional fight between a strongly pro-Soviet Communist group and one that wanted to make it appear that the Communist party in this country had become Americanized and independent of the Soviet Union.

Leaders

The pro-Soviet group headed by William Z. Foster, Eugene Dennis and others, Hoover said, won a decisive victory over the other faction which he said included John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker.

The outcome, Hoover said, "is a definite indication that the Communist party, U. S. A., will continue to blindly follow the dictates of the Soviet Union as it has in the past."

Hoover said investigations during the past year showed that the current Communist leadership "has no intention of relaxing its efforts, and that the increasing pressure of foreign-directed espionage networks will continue indefinitely."

He said the FBI has evidence that the American Communist party is a "hard core of conspiratorial Reds unaffected by party differences and controlled by the heavy hand of Moscow."

Rhee's Party Wins Partial Victory

SEOUL (AP) — South Korea's voters have denied President Syngman Rhee's Liberals the power to block Vice President Chang Myun's right of succession but returned them to control of the National Assembly with a drastically trimmed simple majority.

Chung's Democrats won 78 seats in the 233-seat one-chamber Legislature, independents took 27 and Unity party 1 — far more than enough to halt Liberal plans for having the Assembly choose the aging Rhee's successor in case of death. Near final returns gave the Liberals 123, only six more than 117 required to run the Assembly and far below the 156 two-thirds majority the Liberals wanted.

Counting in the four remaining races in Friday's election was slow.

U.S. Turns Down Plan By Poland

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States decisively rejected Poland's plan for an atom-free zone in central Europe but renewed its own proposal for an open skies inspection zone stretching from the British Isles into the heart of the Soviet Union.

A firm but extremely polite note delivered to the Foreign Ministry in Warsaw Saturday was released by the State Department at noon yesterday. It made an obvious bid for Communist Poland's understanding and friendship in spite of the rejection, Poland having won some shaky independence from Moscow.

Dangerous Division

The note nevertheless sought to bury the Polish plan permanently under half a dozen military arguments against it. In this respect the U. S. document was aimed at Western European opinion, especially British, which fears expanding nuclear armament and favors almost any step to retard or prevent it.

Over-all, the United States argued that a plan which would bar nuclear weapons from West Germany, East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia would perpetuate the dangerous division of Germany, deny Western forces in Germany the weapons they need.

Both major parties are conservative and anti-Communist. They differ mainly over methods of unifying the divided peninsula and on the presidential succession. The Democrats favor nationwide elections under United Nations supervision for unification; the Liberals talk about doing it by force, with elections in the North to fill seats reserved in the Assembly. The Democrats want the constitution left as it is, giving Chang the right of succession; the Liberals want to let the Assembly elect the successor. Rhee is 83 and his term has two years to run.

About 8 1/2 million of South Korea's 10,176,395 registered voters cast ballots.

Sirens To Launch Test Tomorrow

By Don Carlson

A LONG, steady blast of sirens tomorrow morning will serve as a warning note that the nationwide Civil Defense "Operation Alert 1958" is about to send the general public scurrying into shelters momentarily.

The test drill during which the public will participate, will to a degree, be a "surprise test." The exact time will not be known until it actually takes place.

Monroe County CD officials report that it will occur "sometime between 9 and 11 a.m."

ALL MONROE County schools have been requested to participate during the general public participation Civil Defense test tomorrow morning, Monroe County CD Director C. Marshall Reese reported last night.

The request, he said, was forwarded through the County Schools Superintendent's office with each school participating at the same time with the general public.

precede the sounding of a three-minute pulsating signal — this is the signal which will halt traffic and send drivers and passengers as well as pedestrians to the nearest shelter area.

Persons at home or inside other buildings were expected, CD officials said, to remain inside until the alert is completed. This will be marked by a second sounding of the long, steady signal of the sirens.

The "take cover" period, they reported, is not expected to last more than a few minutes — probably less than 10 or 15.

The "all clear" signal will officially end the public's participation in this year's nationwide alert. Civil Defense headquarters in federal, state, county, and sub-division levels, however, will continue to act.

Although the public will have completed their participation, a subsequent statewide control center communications drill will press CD volunteers in action — also at an unannounced time.

Monroe County CD Director C. Marshall Reese reported last night that a skeleton crew will man the control center communications during the day from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. CD Council personnel will be active between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m.

The Civil Defense drill for that organization's personnel — only — will be built around a theoretical enemy attack across the nation, officials explained.

Simulated bombings and subsequent radio-active fallout will be prescribed by the Federal Government, they continued, and CD volunteers will be given problems to work out and report back to the next-in-line headquarters.

As the control center communications drill gets underway, county directors throughout the state and nation will receive attack messages. A dispatch reply — expected within three minutes — must be submitted by the county director to provide other centers with a "flash" report on the strike.

Areas directly hit by the theoretical bombings will be required to submit details of the effect of the bomb and fallout destruction as quickly as possible.

Included in these reports will be the first evident needs such as fire fighting apparatus and medical supplies to combat the simulated devastation.

During the following hours, preliminary reports on the estimated number of casualties and general requirements for emergency feeding and housing will also be submitted through the links of chain command.

Officials describe the chain as from: local centers "reporting to" county centers, county centers to area centers to state Control at Harrisburg, and State Control to Federal Control at Olney, Md.

The presentation was followed by the retiring official presenting gifts to members of his cabinet and their wives.

Brief Address

In a brief address, District Governor Miller expressed thanks to the cabinet for its support during his term of office. Later, Arthur Henry, state convention chairman, reported to those in attendance on the forthcoming three-day statewide conference in June.

The chairman said the convention will be held June 8, 9, and 10 at Tamiment-in-the-Poconos, will be attended by the largest number of Lions club members in history.

Present reservations, he said, indicate some 3,500 registrations will be received by the convention's end.

600 Attend Conference At College

TWO speakers, a panel discussion and some 600 persons in attendance marked the seventh annual conference of the East Stroudsburg State Teachers' College Department of Health and Physical Education.

Held at the college during morning and afternoon sessions Saturday, it was opened with an address by Dr. Jay B. Nash, formerly in charge of the Department of Health and Physical Education at New York University.

Dr. Nash, who has been the recipient of nearly every award and honor issued in that field, retired from the post at New York University last year. At the conference he spoke on "Total Fitness."

The second speaker was W. Herbert Grigson of the Department of Health and Physical Education at Roxboro, Pa. High School. Grigson has received national recognition in this field by development of a highly acclaimed program in physical fitness.

Following a noon luncheon for conference participants, the afternoon session got underway about 1:15 p.m. with a panel discussion on "Total Fitness"—topic of the earlier address.

Panel moderator was Dr. Nash and panel members were:

Miss Eloise Bryan, schools psychologist for the Stroud Union School District, who spoke on emotional fitness.

Albert Erdosy, physical instructor and football coach at Northampton High School, who spoke on social fitness and development.

Grigson, speaker during the morning session, who spoke on physical fitness and development.

Miss Genevieve Zinbar of the college faculty who talked on the physiological basis of physical fitness and development.

The panel discussion was followed by a concluding period of questions and answers in which the attending audience participated. Chairman of the afternoon session was Dr. Richard Luce.

Head of the Health and Physical Education Department at the college is O. J. Liljenstein.

PUMPING APPARATUS is manned in practical drill by some of the 86 volunteer firemen who participated in the weekend fire school conducted by the Monroe County Firemen's Assn. Stroudsburg Resident Presented Patent For 'Measuring Stress In Electrodeposit'

JOSEPH B. KUSHNER, of 115 Broad St., Stroudsburg, was the recipient recently of U. S. patent #2,829,517, entitled "Measuring Stress In An Electrodeposit Or Other Coating".

In many cases, a film or coating, deposited on the surface of an article, either contracts or extends such surface. The force, which is thus exerted, is parallel to the coating and changes the surface into a convex or concave shape depending upon whether the force is of a stretching or contracting nature.

This results in a stress in the coating and presents various problems in the manufacture and use of articles that have electroplated, painted or lacquered surfaces or the like. For example, stresses, which are produced by a coating or layer of electroplated metal, may result in non-adhesion and peeling of the coating and also in serious distortion and rapid corrosion of the finished article. Thus there is a need for a device to measure the stress in such a coating, and various contrivances have been developed for the purpose.

According to Kushner, these prior stress measuring arrangements have not been fully satisfactory. Those which have been found practical have depended upon the flexure of a thin metal strip, but in some cases the apparatus is extremely fragile and its results are difficult to interpret properly.

In other instances, the process involves considerable time and work, with 20 different steps being required to determine the stress. To present a solution to this problem, Kushner has devised a simple and inexpensive apparatus for measuring the lateral stress produced by a thin coating or film. In accordance with his invention, the edge portion of a thin, flexible metal disc is clamped over one end of a chamber that is filled with water and has associated therewith an upright stress-indicating tube.

This assembly is immersed in the electroplating bath, and the movement of the unclamped area of the disc, due to its being coated, causes a change in the height of the liquid in the upright tube and provides the basis for the desired measurement.

Progress Reported

Pocono Mountains Airport has cleared an important hurdle in its efforts to qualify for commercial airline service.

It has the support of the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission in obtaining Federal Civil Aeronautics Board approval for Mohawk Airlines to serve the field at Mount Pocono upon completion of a $400,000 airport expansion program.

Construction of the first two phases of the airport project is expected to get under way in the near future and possibly may be finished yet this year. Funds to cover the costs have already been allocated. Contracts are to be awarded upon completion of legal details in the financing of the proposed construction.

Airport Authority officials said CAB approval of the state agency's suggestion that Mohawk be allowed to serve the local area would virtually guarantee commercial airline service for the Pocono Mountains Airport by the time the field is ready to open.

The authority is then expected to seek CAB permission to have another airline make regular stops at the local field. This would be in line with its announced intention of providing service on both east-west and north-south routes.

Those who have labored long and hard on behalf of the airport improvement program will merit the praise of everybody in the area when they succeed in putting the Pocono Mountains on the airways of the world. Everyone stands to benefit and the progress of the entire region will be advanced considerably through air passenger, mail and express service.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Lightnin' For Breakfast

On skid row it is common practice to breakfast on a beverage known as while lightnin'. That way the hangover from the night before is quickly forgotten.

The United States economy has been suffering something like a hangover in the current recession. Not the least of the excesses being worked out of its system is excess plant capacity.

Now Senator Capehart of Indiana has introduced a bill which would aim to cure the recession. Under this bill, capital investment supposedly would be greatly spurred by the Government's doubling, or more than doubling, depreciation tax reductions on certain assets. The result supposedly would be a wave of plant building which would spur the economy upward.

There is a rather basic question — in recession times or boom times — whether special tax deductions are morally justifiable. And there is the philosophical question of whether such intervention by Government in economics won't work more long-range harm than good for the country, no matter what the impact on the current recession.

But those questions aside, what about the practical aspects of curing the present economic difficulties by encouraging new capital investment? New capital investment because of a natural upturn in consumer demand would be one thing and a good thing. Merely building buildings not only doesn't cure anything but might produce a considerable detriment to real recovery.

For it would, in the end, only increase the already-too-great plant capacity. There might well be a temporary uplift in the economy. But it would be much the kind of uplift that comes from breakfasting on white lightnin'.

The Pennsylvania Story

Lawrence's Program

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Columnist Abigail Van Buren has asked each of the six candidates for Pennsylvania's governorship to express in his own words "WHAT" he, in particular, should be given the gubernatorial nod over his opponents in the May 30 primary election. In answer to this question, the Pennsylvania Record is publishing the following statements by David L. Lawrence, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.)

By David L. Lawrence
Democratic Gubernatorial Candidate

Harriburg — I appreciate this opportunity to discuss some of the reasons I am running for Governor of Pennsylvania and to outline, briefly, some of the things I hope to accomplish for Pennsylvania.

I am not running for governor because I have a suppressed desire to review the troops at Indiantown Gap (military reservation), to lead the grand march at the inaugural ball, or to become high man on the totem pole of social protocol at Washington. I am not running for governor to divide the people of this state.

When I am nominated and elected, I will not be a politician-as-usual governor, anymore than I have been a politician-as-usual mayor of Pittsburgh. I will do my best to unite all Pennsylvanians in the cause we serve, and, as I have in Pittsburgh, I will not hesitate a moment in soliciting the support and cooperation of all men and women who share a desire to work for the advancement of their community.

I feel that my mission, my responsibility, my work from 1939 through 1963, will be to light a flame of civic awareness across this state as cannot be extinguished in a generation.

Pennsylvania has not been a cohesive, a unified state. We have had but a small measure of state pride; a limited sense of state responsibility. We have had in Pennsylvania too much feeling that East is East and West is West — and never the twain shall meet.

We have had too little understanding in the cities of our rural and suburban problems, and too little sympathy in the vast area we call "upstate" with the special problems of the metropolitan centers.

I do not believe it is unreasonable to hope that government, labor and industry, men and women from every section of our state, can be combined in a great joint operation for the good of Pennsylvania's people.

Obviously this means the work of thousands. But obviously too it will require leadership. That leadership must come from the governor's office. It will take constant hard work, devotion, the cooperation of every element in Pennsylvania's life; it will take all our resources and imagination. By working together, as Pennsylvanians, we can get the job done.

Pennsylvania can be first in highways, first in mental health and public health standards, first in public education and in scholarships for gifted students, first in social security and human rights, first in slum clearance and the rebuilding of our cities, first in marketing our farm products, first in our concern for our aged and our needy.

We have made giant strides toward these goals in the past three years under Governor Leader.

I am a candidate for Governor because I do not want to see our state lose ground, because I want to carry forward the Leader program, because I believe we can hold the initiative, gain momentum, everlastingly drive forward.

I want to put this state to work as it has never worked before. I am sure we can do it. I know we can make Pennsylvania first among the 48 states of the nation. We can have no lesser goal.

Overlooked: The squeaky wheel gets the oil. Squeak a little!

CONFIDENTIAL TO VIOLA: Two might be able to live as cheap as one—but when they live together as man and wife, there is always a possibility of a "third" to consider. Think it over, Honey!

(For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Dear Abby: I have a question to ask you and some of your readers. It is no secret that the best cooks in all the world are men. (In France they wouldn't even let a woman in the kitchen except to wash the dishes), so why is it that in THIS country, women kick their men out of the kitchen.

Dear Curious: When an American man goes into a kitchen, he generally isn't pressed desire to review the troops at Indiantown Gap (military reservation), to lead the grand march at the inaugural ball, or to become high man on the totem pole of social protocol at Washington. I am not running for governor to divide the people of this state.

When I am nominated and elected, I will not be a politician-as-usual governor, anymore than I have been a politician-as-usual mayor of Pittsburgh. Dear Abby: I have a question to ask you and some of your readers. It is no secret that the best cooks in all the world are men. (In France they wouldn't even let a woman in the kitchen except to wash the dishes), so why is it that in THIS country, women kick their men out of the kitchen.

George Sokolsky Says...

Murderous Youth

So the story goes that a New York City Youth Board operative took Ramon Serra and two companions for a ride. They ate hot dogs and drank soda pop and he induced them to play a game of softball the next day.

Then they went to a candy store where, in the presence of the Youth Board worker, Serra murdered Michael Ramos, a gang organizer. The social worker commented:

"I heard a loud noise—a blast. It was so loud that I put my hands up to my ears."

On dear! What a sweet and lovely story!

New York City and many other cities are dangerous places for living because for sentimental reasons, the public authorities decline to treat crime as crime and criminals as criminals.

Many social workers, do-gooders, even newspaper editors who should know better, believe that crime can be put down by coddling criminals.

Actually, what they mean is that as the Negro and Puerto Rican population is enormous and in some areas of New York represents a majority, it is neither sound business nor sound politics to make too much noise about whatever may be offensive to them, even murder.

The Youth Board, in New York City, as similar organizations are elsewhere, is a coddling organization, designed to achieve by weakness and light what all human experience proves can only be accomplished by punishment.

Even applying the social worker's slogan "The greatest good to the greatest number," the gangs have become intolerable. They not only murder individuals who have a legal and moral right to remain alive, but they produce conditions which close down parks at night, make streets dangerous and cost the city money for additional policing.

The youth gangs should be broken up by brute force.

The Youth Board in New York consists of 18 respectable and busy citizens, few of whom have any time to devote to this activity having affairs of their own, and 10 public officials each one of whom has a full time job. So the task, as in all such situations, is to scrub my face and hands over and over in an attempt to wash off some of the dirt I was sure I had contacted from that kiss. After that, I just didn't seem interested in having boy friends. I never had any ambitions to be anything but dead in those days.

Among her minor difficulties is a compulsion for being tardy. She once went to a psychoanalyst about this. That didn't solve the problem, however. She always arrived too late for her appointment.

shrinkers while being stretched across a couch. Nowadays, the couch has no boundaries. It extends to books, mags and dailies. The celebs happily babble about their aspirations, fears, frustrations, motivations and anxieties. No emotion has become too sacred for public discussion. From a human interest standpoint it has a certain fascination, of course. Everybody is interested in the other person's troubles. As for the stars, it offers them an opportunity to discuss their favorite people: Me, myself and I.

The blame-morning-or-daddy theory has a passionate advocate in the person of Ava Gardner. She contends that her problems began when she was 15 and her mother caught her kissing a boy. Miss Gardner recalls: "The things mother called me and my date don't repeating now. It's enough to say I never was so embarrassed and mortified in my life. I remember going to my room and scrubbing my face and hands over and over in an attempt to wash off some of the dirt I was sure I had contacted from that kiss. After that, I just didn't seem interested in having boy friends. I never had any ambitions to be anything but dead in those days."

Robert S. Allen Reports...

Ike Plans Dramatic Move

Washington — President Eisenhower is pondering a dramatic labor-management idea to speed the economic recovery.

It's that he summon Roger Blough, head of U.S. Steel, and David McDonald, head of United Steel Workers, to the White House and personally urge them to hold-the-line on wages and prices.

Under an agreement signed in 1956, largely through the "friendly offices" of then-Treasury Secretary George Humphrey and Labor Secretary James Mitchell, steel workers are due to receive in July an increase of approximately 20 cents an hour in wages and fringe benefits.

To meet this additional cost, the steel companies are considering price raises ranging from $5 to $10 a ton.

If both sides of this basic industry can be persuaded to maintain the status quo on wages and prices, the President's economic advisers are fully convinced that would powerfully stimulate business and employment throughout the country.

While the plan for him to personally talk to Blough and McDonald appeals to the President, he is aware it faces serious obstacles.

Foremost among them is McDonald's insistence on the July pay boost.

The steel workers' chief has left no doubt about that in discussions with Labor Department officials, who sounded him out on the matter: McDonald stressed two points: (1) The forthcoming raise is an integral part of the original agreement; (2) it can be changed only by a vote of the entire union membership.

"I couldn't suspend this increase," said McDonald. "Neither I nor anyone else in the USW has that authority. A contract is a contract, and any change would have to be submitted to all the members of our union. Only they can decide that."

Strong doubt was also voiced by McDonald that his rank-and-file would approve giving up the pay raise.

Moot Issue—In the cabinet, no one stands higher in congressional esteem than Labor

Secretary Mitchell, but he had a strenuous time convincing members of the powerful House Appropriations Committee that business will appreciably improve in the summer.

That forecast was sharply challenged by Representatives John Fogarty (D.R.I.), chairman of the subcommittee which handles the Labor Department's budget, Winfield Denton (D., Ind.), and Fred Marshall (D., Minn.). They vigorously questioned the basis for Mitchell's optimistic view.

Significantly, not one of the Republican Committee members present said a word in Mitchell's behalf. Representatives John Taber, N.Y., senior GOP Committee member, Melvin Laird, Wis., and others sat silent throughout Mitchell's grilling.

"You say there will be a decided pickup in business and employment by mid-summer," said Fogarty. "I have statements here before me by businessmen and economists that real improvement cannot be expected until fall or later. On what grounds do you make your claim?"

"One is that we have a substantially sound economy," replied Mitchell. "There are more than 62,000,000 employed. Another factor is that the cost of credit has been reduced. It's now cheaper to borrow money for business purposes. Further, the Defense Department is greatly increasing its spending and that is already being felt throughout the country. Personally, I think some of these economists are confused."

"Maybe so," retorted Fogarty, "but I'll tell you some people who are not confused at all. They are the more than eight percent in my state who have lost their jobs. Some of them have been out of work for months, and have exhausted their unemployment compensation benefits and are on relief. These people aren't confused about this situation at all."

Representative Denton questioned Secretary Mitchell regarding the reliability of unemployment statistics.

"I have a plant in my district which recently announced it will work one week and close the next," said the Indianan. "This plant employs about 500 workers. How do you list them; as employed or unemployed?"

"Not as unemployed, certainly," replied Mitchell. "Then the situation is considerably worse than your statistics show," declared Fogarty. "Just what is the Administration proposing to do about the unemployment problem?"

Mitchell cited the various measures that have been taken, and others which have been recommended to Congress.

"The Administration has already done many things to cope with the economic situation," asserted Mitchell, "and is prepared to take any other action which may be necessary. The President has repeatedly stressed that, and he means it. He does not talk lightly or casually. He is following this matter closely and constantly, and much of his time is devoted to it. But it must be kept in mind that too much at the wrong time can be as harmful as not doing enough."

"That is a good theory," said Representative Marshall, "but you would have a hard time selling it to the 5,000,000 who are out of work. It is no solace to them, especially when their unemployment insurance runs out. What are they to do?"

"Their recourse is to fall back on savings, and hopefully find another job," replied Mitchell. "I am not trying to minimize the seriousness of this problem, but I am also not one who considers this an alarming recession. I am firmly convinced that summer will bring a decided pickup in business and employment throughout the country."

"Let's pray you're right," declared Fogarty. "We sure need it."

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Well, maybe we aren't actually mildewed, but with this weather our dispositions certainly are. It's getting to the point where we don't see the apple blossoms for the tent-caterpillar nets.

Which reminds me that Mrs. Roy Houser has a remedy for them. Rags dipped in crude oil and DDT, wrapped around a pole, and stuck in the nest will do the job — particularly if you wait until sundown when the caterpillars have gone home to sleep.

It's better than burning them out because you also burn the tree limbs — but not so easy as picking the seed pods from the lower limbs before they hatch, which was about a month ago. So we're a little late for that.

And speaking of being a little late — the Presbyterian women will have slightly red faces tonight when they are the guests of the Methodist women. Seem the Methodists stole a march on them, and invited Rev. John Bollier to speak on his experiences at the Ecumenical conference in Switzerland before the women of his own church got around to it.

And speaking of red faces, you should have seen the committee at the Glen Brook opening supper dance. The orchestra arrived, ready to play, and no-body could find the piano! They haven't found it yet, but Johnny Dengler went home and got his own piano, so the day was saved.

Actually, the dinner dance had already saved the day for the golfers — who, if they couldn't play, could do the next best thing and talk golf to their hearts content. And remember—behind the clouds the sun is still shining—I hope!

People are always interesting. And since this area has a large, active population, life is rarely dull. Having been born and reared in Stroudsburg, I am fortunate in knowing a goodly share of these people... yet, having been away from this region for some fifteen years, I am amazed—and sometimes most remorseful—that there are so very many whom I have not met.

As a matter of fact, I felt decidedly among strangers when I entered Bob Miller's living room the other evening for a meeting with the Fashion Show Committee of the Morey School PTA. I knew Ira, of course... also Kathryn Kellogg, Mrs. William Clark, Jean Yutz, also Kathryn Kellogg, Mrs. William Clark, Jean Yutz, and Lloyd Manter's wife. But most of the faces were new to me, although everyone was so pleasant and friendly. I soon felt I had known everyone present for ever so long. When it comes right down to it, it would be thoroughly impossible for women to remain strangers long, when their two principal topics of conversation are CHILDREN and FASHIONS—as, of course, ours were.

Some of the anecdotes recounted about children were delightful... and certainly enthusiasm is running high among the parents for the talent and style show this Wednesday evening, May 7th, at Stroud Union High School.

I am meeting some charming women too through the Hadassah Fashion Show scheduled for Tuesday evening, June 17, at 8 p.m. at Tamiment, in Bushkill. Interviewing Mrs. Herman Lax, Mrs. Max Fleischmann, Mrs. Edward Katz, Mrs. Albert Koster, and Mrs. Morris Jacobson the other afternoon at a taped session, I learned some highly interesting facts. Mrs. Jacobson, for instance, was born in Vienna... was a prisoner in a German concentration camp for several years... later was one of 1300 captives exchanged to Switzerland for medicines and drugs sorely needed by the Germans... and eventually came to post-war America, fell in love, married and settled in the Stroudsburgs. One would never guess from the frequency or brilliance of her smile that she has such dark days to look back upon.

I learned too that Mrs. Lax has been a Hadassah member 26 years in SIXTEEN CITIES. Quite a record, wouldn't you say?

Then there are interesting people who drop by the office: Dorothy Westbrook Austin and Louise (Mrs. Henry) Hefele with more than unusual Madonnas for my collection; artists galore from the entire Pocono Mountain region and Easton with paintings for the art show now being hung at Buck Hill Inn; teen agers to have their "love lockets" engraved, and salesmen with information about their wares.

The mailman cements our friendships, too! Just the other day he brought a birthday card from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, and baffled everyone since the signature faded into the arm of an old hillbilly. We finally figured it out—it was from Bea Sell, the pretty brunette who charmed customers of our Men's Shop several years ago, and made many friends for the store. Another pleasant surprise was a birthday card from Al Drachman and his bride, Rose. Mr. Drachman was a regular customer and correspondent of mine when I did the store shopping... and, since he writes and lectures on Pennsylvania Dutch lore, he bought Pennsylvania Dutch craft galore. His very kind birthday greeting pictures a DISTELFINCK, wouldn't you guess? And below is the notation, "from Wyckoff's."

Daily Record Survey

Disagreement Reigns On State Department

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is one of a series of articles on Monroe County education. Each will be based on the results of the county-wide survey conducted by the editor for the Daily Record.

By Leonard Randolph
THERE is sharp disagreement among local educators over authority given to the Department of Public Instruction.

It extends to the kind of authority involved, the manner in which it is administered and the degree given to the State.

In an era during which Gov. Leader and other State spokesmen have urged possible return of some responsibilities to local districts, some Monroe County educators feel:

The State should accept MORE instead of LESS of the financial responsibility for local education.

The State should take more interest in actual "supervision" of education. Uniformity of standards and policies should be evolved and enforced by the DPI.

Some other educators find the idea of further State controls on education intolerable. They say:

The State should continue to accept its financial obligations to local districts but it should not use this financial aid as a lever to dictate policy to small districts.

The State should attempt to work WITH local districts FOR better schools — WITHOUT causing the school to lose its identity or individual quality.

This group (and part of the first feels that the State should concentrate to a large degree on "oil its own machinery" — making it easier, instead of more difficult, for schools to obtain information and assistance "through channels." It is the general opinion of these educators that the State should give schools more freedom in planning and allocate more money to make this possible.

One opinion frequently expressed by East Stroudsburg State Teachers College faculty members is that "legislators need to be educated." Many times, college teachers feel, the legislature is uninformed or misinformed about current needs in education.

Although the legislator who is "against sin" is probably also a strong advocate of "better schools" during an election campaign, his public pronouncements generally show that he hasn't bothered to become acquainted with the real problems of modern education. Political opportunism is still one of education's most devious and destructive enemies.

College teachers also make these suggestions for further action by the DPI, the State Council of Education and the legislature:

—In my opinion, too much money and time are expended on courses such as home economics (which should be taught in the home), shop et al. These courses frequently are in the program because students are unable to participate in academic subjects.

—The DPI might have more regional meetings to set instructional goals, and to involve ways to implement or attain the objectives.

—By allocating more funds for salaries, facilities and new schools. By consolidating the number of State Teachers Colleges thereby offering a more compact and less wasteful system.

College faculty members agree with classroom teachers and administrators in the public schools on several major areas of State activity: Making building programs easier; enforcing existing policy; increasing cooperation between State and local districts.

In answers to previous questions (on teacher education) a large number of STC personnel endorse adding more subject matter courses to teacher training. These recommendations are not repeated here, but they would require action by the DPI and the Council of Education to go into effect.

(Tomorrow — The People and the Department)

Tim Tam Heads For Second Goal In Bid For Racing's Triple Crown

By JOHN CHANDLER
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky Derby winner Tim Tam takes off Monday for Baltimore and the Preakness in an effort to wrap up another part of the triple crown, while Silky Sullivan will attempt a comeback in Maryland's great 3-year-old classic.

The horse traffic between Churchill Downs on the Ohio River and ancient Pimlico on the Chesapeake Bay apparently will be rather heavy, because it seems that eight or nine from Saturday's Derby field of 14 will be heading east.

Racing Factor
Mud was the ruling factor in all cases, as even Jimmy Jones, trainer of Tim Tam, thought the slippery going in the 84th running of the Derby affected his colt's performance.

"We won, and don't think we're kicking," said Jones, who now has saddled two consecutive Derby heroes. "I don't think Tim Tam liked that slick race-track, but we can always use the money," he concluded with a laugh.

Obviously, the track conditions left a lot of questions unanswered as far as this crop of 3-year-olds is concerned. Heavy rains off and on throughout the week left the Churchill Downs track of clay as slippery as an ice skating rink.

Tim Tam got the mile and one-quarter job done in 2:06 flat, the slowest time since another Calumet colt — Citation — won the derby in 1948. Citation, who then went on to complete the triple by taking the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes, ran on a sloppy course in 2:06 2-5. Big Cy, however, won handily, while Ismael Valenzuela had Tim Tam under a hard drive to nab the winner's share amounting to $116,400.

Jones, who saddled Iron Liege last year in the derby, then watched him run second back of Bold Ruler in the Preakness, said Valenzuela would be aboard Tim Tam in the mile and three-sixteenths event at Pimlico.

Bill Hartack, Calumet's regular rider, still has his broken leg in a cast and it's a question whether he'll even be ready for the final of the triple crown — the mile and one-half Belmont Stakes June 7.

Finished 12th
"Silky's lucky he has shoes left on his feet," said Reggie Cornell, trainer of the West Coast sensation who lacked his usual late charge and finished 12th.

"The shoe on his left front foot is spread a bit, but there's no use beefing about the track. Silky just didn't like it. We'll go to Pimlico Monday. That was the first time Martins Rullah ever finished in front of us, and I know Silky can do a lot better than he showed everybody here yesterday."

The Sunny Blue Farm's Lincoln Road, who set the pace only to falter in the final sixteenth and finish second, and the Crabgrass Stable's Nouruddin who was third, are expected to be made supplementary Preakness eligibles by payment of $7,500 each due no later than Wednesday.

Robinson Hurt, Hospitalized
CHICAGO (AP) — Cincinnati outfielder Frank Robinson was taken to Wesley Memorial Hospital Sunday after suffering injuries in the ninth inning of the first game of a double-header with the Chicago Cubs.

Robinson went sprawling to the ground while chasing Walt Moryn's wind-blown double which gave the Cubs a 5-4 victory. He walked off the field after having been knocked out but suffered cuts on the forehead and nose after his sunglasses had been shattered.

Robinson wanted to play in the second game but Dr. J. R. Hines recommended he be sent to the hospital for a checkup.

Shoots 75 at 77
DENVER (AP) — Nick Wagar began his 1958 golfing campaign by shooting a 75, three over par, at the Park Hill course. One might say that's far from remarkable. Nick is 77 years old.

STC Thinclads Top NYCC, 72-54 Weigner, Huber Pace 'Hill'

To Second Win In 3 Meets

BROOKLYN, N. Y. — East Stroudsburg Teachers thinclads, spurred by sweeps in three events, outslashed New York Community College, 72-54, in a dual meet on rain-swept and cold Red Hook Stadium here Saturday.

The Warriors of Howard
DeNike had troubles in the early events until miler Karl Weigner won the mile and started them on their way.

Sweeps in the two-mile run (Weigner won this also), 220 low hurdles and shotput jettied the Warriors into the winners circle for the second time in three meets.

Weigner and Ken Huber were the Warriors' two-time victors. Weigner won the mile and two-miler, while Huber placed first in the shotput and discus throw.

Poor Conditions
A muddy track, slippery run-and-extreme cold weather hampering space on running ramps pered both teams.

3 New Faces
On '59 Penn
State Slate

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa.—Missouri, for the first time, Colgate and Illinois represent the new faces on the 1959 Penn State football schedule announced today by E. B. McCoy, director of athletics.

The schedule, which presently consists of nine games, may be boosted to ten games, McCoy said it was not final whether the September 26 date would remain permanently open.

The Nittany Lions last played Colgate in 1948. The Illinois game, first since the Lions upset the Illini, 14-12, in 1954, will be played in the Cleveland Stadium at Cleveland, O.

Home attractions will be Colgate, Boston University, Syracuse and Holy Cross. For the second straight year, the closing game at Pittsburgh will be played on Thanksgiving Day.

The schedule:
Sept. 19, at Missouri; 26, open; Oct. 3, Colgate; 10, at Army; 17, Boston University; 24, Illinois at Cleveland; 31, at West Virginia.
Nov. 7, Syracuse; 14, Holy Cross; 26, at Pittsburgh.

Teacher Grabs
Walking Crown

NEW YORK—Bruce Duncan Mac Donald, a 30-year-old teacher who took up walking after competing as a hurdler in college, Sunday won the national 10,000 meters walking championship at Van Cortlandt Park Stadium.

Mac Donald, a teacher of driver education at Port Washington, N. Y., High School, led the New York Pioneer Club to a team victory with a sweep of the first three places for a minimum total of six points. The Penn A.C. of Philadelphia was second with 15 points.

Mac Donald covered the 10,000 meters (6 miles 376 yards) in the rain in 50 minutes and 37 seconds.

Joe Brown Puts Lightweight Title On Line Wednesday

By The Associated Press
JOE BROWN, the world lightweight champion, will make the fourth defense of his title Wednesday at the Houston Coliseum against clever Ralph Dupas, a speedy boxer who also comes from New Orleans.

Dupas, 22, hasn't lost since 1956 but has been boxing around the 140-142 pound class. He will have to get down to 135 pounds for this 15-pounder. Dupas has never gone more than 10 rounds and will be the underdog.

69-15-9 Mark
The 32-year-old champ is a veteran of 95 fights with a 69-15-9 record, plus two no contest matches. Dupas has a 70-8-6 record for 84 starts.

There will be network TV and radio coverage of the bout.

WISHING WELL
Registered U. S. Patent Office.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add 6. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Belvidere Man Draws Jail Term

WIND GAP—A former local resident was sentenced to Northampton County Jail yesterday in lieu of $850 bail after pleading guilty to a disorderly conduct charge before Peace Justice R. S. Daniel here.
Raymond Oslin, 30, Belvidere, N.J., was arrested Friday at the request of Police Chief W. L. Templeton. He was charged with loitering and prowling at night time, hit-run driving and disorderly conduct.
Waives Hearing
He waived hearing on the other three charges and will face the June term of criminal court.
Templeton said the loitering and disorderly charges were the results of complaints of Third St. residents. The hit-run charge involved a parked truck early Friday.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — You will have to search for profitable opportunities and use considerable ingenuity to reach the high goals you seek now and for the whole week. You have the brains and the general know-how, too, should be able to benefit from them.
November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Finances, investments, spending generally should be handled with caution now. But don't stint on necessities. Care for loved ones properly. Routine affairs favored.
December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Influences just so, so, so, you will have to supply your own impetus and vigor. Don't be anxious, however, and so crowd yourself with tasks that you must strain to get them done. Be reasonable in all things.
January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — A fine Uranus aspect plus good Mercury and Moon influences, so you are in the driver's seat. Make the most of advantages, good suggestions, offers, and don't wait until too late to benefit from them.
February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Extra care urged with chemicals, medicines, all liquids; also in water activities. On the other hand, day should be a success. Current tendencies toward haste, self-will.
YOU BORN TODAY are friendly, enthusiastic, capable of acquiring knowledge and able to impart that knowledge to others. You are generally adaptable have unusual hidden talents. You should be eloquent in speech, may have a fine singing voice. Many famed actors, singers and speakers were born in your Zodiacal sector. And many Taurus men and women have been of great help to the world as doctors, religious and statesmen. You have the brains, the knowledge, the tendencies toward haste, self-will.

Signal Depot To Display Alertness

TOBYHANNA — The alertness of the Army Signal Corps to serve the people through close cooperation with American industry, as well as through its exclusively military missions, will be emphasized by Tobyhanna Signal Depot during Tobyhanna Days in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg this coming weekend.
Since its establishment by Congressional action on March 3, 1923, until the present day, the Signal Corps has carried on its manifold activities in both war and peace.
In less than the span of a century, Signal Corps communications have advanced from the wigwag flags, still carried in the basic Signal Corps insignia, to modern television and radio, capable of transmitting messages around the globe in a matter of minutes.
The present-day system of weather reporting, found to be so necessary to strategic planning during World War II and Korea, had its out-growth from pioneering stations set up by the Signal Corps in 1870. Today the corps, long a leader in radar research and development, conceived and developed storm-detector radar, forerunner of all the weather radars currently being purchased by the weather bureau, CAA, Navy and Air Force.

Two Hurt In East Borough Auto Accident

TWO Monroe County youths were injured late yesterday afternoon in a two-car collision in East Stroudsburg's S. Courtland Street, Borough Police reported.
Treated at the office of Dr. Charles H. Rushmore for facial abrasions were Richard C. Houck, 17, of Saylorsburg RD 2, and Wayne Adams, 16, of Brodheadsville.
According to investigation Patrolmen Don Quick and Clark Frailley, the 17-year-old Houck youth was driving a 1949 sedan owned by Mrs. Dorothy Houck of the same address.
Passengers in the vehicle with him were Robert C. Houck, 15, of 29 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, and the Adams youth.
The other motorist was identified by police as Richard A. Zukawski, 22, of East Stroudsburg RD 3, who was driving a 1958 car.
The accident occurred at Washington St. police said, when the northbound Zukawski car collided with the southbound Houck vehicle as the latter was attempting to turn left from S. Courtland Street into Washington St.
The 5 p.m. mishap resulted in an estimated $600 damage to the new car, while the Houck vehicle was considered a total loss, police said.

'Open House' At Hospital

THE VETERANS Administration Hospital, Wilkes-Barre, held an "Open House" yesterday.
Each year, guided tours are conducted throughout the Hospital during "National Hospital Week" to give the public an opportunity to observe, first-hand, the facilities available for treatment of eligible veterans.
Tours this year were scheduled the Sunday before the beginning of "National Hospital Week" to avoid a conflict with Mother's Day.
The public participation in the hospital tour which began at 1 p.m. and ended at 4 p.m. The tour featured a visit to the amphitheatre of the main operating room, plus displays in various departments.
DELAND, Fla. (AP) — School teachers have the lowest I.Q. rating of members of any profession, Hugh McEniry, liberal arts dean of Stetson University, told a legislative committee on education.
That's a reflection on how attractive we make teaching," he said.
McEniry was a witness before the interim committee gathering information on which to base recommendations for new legislation on education.
He compared the teaching profession in Russia, where he said salaries run up to the equivalent of $30,000, to the teaching profession in the United States.
"What we need is not a few thousand dollars more," he said, but closer to a billion dollars to provide for better teachers.

District Governor Of VFW Honored

LEHIGHTON — Milton Rex, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars' 20th District, was honored Saturday at a testimonial dinner in the local VFW home.
Charles D. Neast, Carbon County sheriff and the principal speaker, praised Rex' contribution to the veterans organizations in the district.
Other speakers included Isabel Wasas of Nesquehoning, auxiliary president of the district and Carbon County, Council; Thomas Markley, past post commander; Irene Bretz, past auxiliary president; Oliver Nantzel, post commander, and Mrs. Helen Stubit, auxiliary president.
The district commander has been an active member of the local post since World War II.

Former Bangor Man Jailed

BANGOR — Edward Cole, 49, formerly of Bangor, was sent to Northampton County Jail Saturday after waiving a hearing on a morals charge before Alderman David T. Reibman of Allentown. He will await grand jury action.
Cole was returned from Rhode Island, where he was arrested May 1. He is accused of fleeing after being charged with an offense against a 10-year-old Phillipsburg boy April 14 near Portland.
Photography, pioneered in World War I, as the beginning of Signal intelligence, was further widened in scope during World War II both as an intelligence mission and as means of recording combat operations. Specialized still and motion picture cameramen followed infantry and armored units into frontline positions, many of them losing their lives in the performance of their duties.
The Signal Corps also sponsored the design and development of a plastic paper that can produce photographs in an oven, eliminating the need for darkroom. A 16mm sound motion picture developed by the Army Signal Corps has sparked improvements in both sound and picture quality of commercial equipment.
In 1907, at the dawn of the air age, the present day U. S. Air Force was born when the Signal Corps established an aviation section, using as basic an airplane whose top speed was 40 mph.
A prime example of one of the Signal Corps contributions to industry is the printed circuit, and a companion development known as the "Auto-Semily" of electronic parts. Inexpensive and rapidly produced, it is now almost universally used in the chassis of commercial radios and television sets.
There are many more benefits to the civilian economy resulting from the research and development carried on by the Army Signal Corps. Among these are such things as portable TV cameras, new and improved technique of microwave relay communication, miniature thermostats for industrial safety equipment, internally suppressed spark plugs for automobiles and trucks, and improved types of wire and insulation, and superior radio and TV tubes.
There is scarcely a single area of electronics or communications that does not in some way reflect the many and diversified contributions of the Army Signal Corps toward improving the American way of life.

'Recovery Room' Among New Hospital Additions

A NEW IMPROVEMENT at General Hospital of Monroe County is the recovery room. Part of the new addition opened for use on Monday of this week, the room can be used for several purposes.

Drugs Prove Successful In Mental Cases

(EDITOR'S NOTE — In the interest of better mental health, The Daily Record presents this series of articles by Dr. George S. Stevenson with the cooperation of the Monroe County Mental Health Assn. Dr. Stevenson is medical consultant to the National Association for Mental Health and was presented by the local group here last December at a public meeting.)

By George S. Stevenson
CONSIDERABLE success is currently being found in the use of a number of different drugs called "tranquillizers." They differ from sedatives because they don't just dull the senses, but actually make mental symptoms — like anxiety, agitation and delusions — disappear, leaving the patient in a generally relaxed, clear-headed and peaceful frame of mind.

Several of these drugs are now being used as standard treatment for some types of psychoses in mental hospitals. They are also being prescribed for non-hospitalized patients. Many mental hospital patients have shown very sharp recovery after only a short course of treatment, and have stayed well even after the drugs have been discontinued. Other patients required continued treatment with the drugs, even after discharge from the hospital.

These drugs do not, at present, work with all psychoses, or even with all patients suffering from a particular psychosis with which the drugs have been found generally effective.

They appear to be least effective with cases in which deep depression is the main symptom. The use of these drugs sometimes develops undesirable side-effects in some patients. Research is now going on to reduce or eliminate these side-effects.

Many experts are of the opinion that these drugs work best in combination with psychotherapy, serving to bring the patient out of withdrawn or agitated states so that he can be "reached" by the psychotherapist and helped to gain self-understanding.

Treatment
Psychotherapy is a form of treatment in which an attempt is made to influence the illness by working with the patient's thoughts and emotions through spoken communication with him. Two forms of psychotherapy and psychoanalysis.

In individual psychotherapy the patient discusses his experiences, thoughts and feelings with the therapist and is helped to gain an understanding and insight as to the reasons for his trouble. He is encouraged to express himself freely and to release "bottled up" emotions. As he analyzes his problems and sees them in a clearer light, he is helped to work out less painful and more satisfactory ways of handling them.

Psychoanalysis goes much deeper than individual psychotherapy and attempts to achieve the same aims through a re-

Perhaps most unique of its functions will be in the area of temporary treatment for patients who are mentally disturbed.

Addition of the room does not mean that the hospital considers itself physically equipped to work extensively with a patient with an emotional disorder.

Treatment
It does mean, however, that the local hospital will now be able to provide some treatment on a purely temporary basis for an emergency case of this kind. The room will also be used as a recovery room for seriously ill patients whenever this is feasible or necessary.

It is located in one corner of the converted solarium which has been reconstructed into additional bed space with its own nursing station in the corridor. Six new beds have been "created" by conversion of the solarium. The space was, previously, almost unusable during most months of the year. Now there are three new rooms for patients plus the recovery room.

Funds for the construction came from a Ford Foundation grant given to the hospital two years ago.

Area Girl In Ceremonies

MISS Anne E. Nitrauer of 120 Lee Ave., Stroudsburg, will be one of the participants in the annual May Queen ceremonies at Pennsylvania State University this Saturday.

Karen E. Bixler, a 20-year-old senior in home economics of Huntingdon Valley, Montgomery County, will be crowned as queen during the traditional ceremony on the front campus at 3:30 p.m.

Miss Nitrauer will participate as an honor arch in the event.

building of the crippled personality and restoration of stunted emotional growth. This method is based on the theory that the patient's problems are the result of deeply buried emotional conflicts originating in childhood.

The attempt is therefore made to bring these conflicts from the unconscious mind, where they have been repressed, and out into the patient's conscious awareness, so they can be "relieved," and then resolved.

With a release from the crippling effects of the conflicts, the patient is helped to adopt new, healthy, and correct patterns, less fearful and suspicious attitudes, a feeling of greater confidence in himself and trust in others.
